His post-military career led him to become a Captain of Security at Bellefonte Nuclear Plant in Hollywood, Alabama. In 1959, he married Alice Amithyne Thomas and from this union, they had two sons, James and Charles Blair. Amithyne, as she was affectionately known, passed away ten years into their marriage. Several years later, he married Ethel (née Palmer) Robinson, and his family grew with the addition of her sons, Talmadge and Johann Robinson. George loved to sing. When he was in a particularly good mood, he'd serenade anyone within earshot with his rich, baritone voice and his ability to beautifully yodel. His favorite gospel singer was Lee Williams. In his younger years, he nurtured his talent for singing by joining a few gospel quartets. Another one of his passions was going to flea markets in search of treasures. He had the heart of a collector and his found-treasures brought him much joy. However, if you knew George, you would have known that his biggest passion, above all else, and the activity that he devoted the most time to, was weightlifting. He renovated his garage into a home gym and spent many hours doing what he loved – lifting weights. He was known in the neighborhood for his well-equipped gym and often shared the space with some of the young people who were eager for the opportunity to work out with him. Preceding him in death are his parents and his niece, Nancy Blair West. Left to mourn his passing are his sisters: Ann Crutcher and Christine Freeman of Huntsville, AL and Athens, AL, respectively; his sons James Blair (Judy), Franklin, TN, Charles Blair,

Huntsville, AL, William Talmadge Robinson, IV, (Tiara), Apopka, FL, Johann C. Robinson, Sr., Tuscumbia, AL and his devoted nephew, Theodore Blair who spent an inordinate amount of time making sure that George had whatever he needed when he needed it and was always responsive whenever George called on him. George loved his grandchildren. He had a huge soft spot in his heart reserved just for them and would do anything for them: Christina Crawford (Bryan), Matthew Blair, Maya Robinson, Whitney Robinson, Johann Christopher Robinson II, Jalil Palmer (J.P.) Robinson, Tyree Robinson, and great-granddaughter Aria Crawford along with other great-nieces and great-nephews. The family thanks Gloria Garth, Priscilla Horton of Diversicare of Big Springs, Teresa Patton of Servant Home Care LLC, Pina Warren, and the staff at Floyd E. "Tut" Fann Veteran's State Home who provided excellent care, his neighbors the Camps and the Sanders who were there for George in his time of need, Nelms Memorial Funeral Home, and Valhalla Funeral Home and Memory Gardens. JOSEPH LEE “Joe” GALLOWAY, JR. — Died Wednesday, August 18, 2021 in Concord, North Carolina at the age of 79. The cause of death was a heart attack. Joe was born on November 13, 1941 in Refugio, Texas to the late Joseph Lee Galloway, Sr. and Marian (née Dewvell) Galloway. His father worked for Humble Oil. Less than a month after he was born, the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. Four of his mother’s brothers went to war; so did his father and five of his brothers. “I did not meet my father until the end of 1945, when he came home from the service,” Mr. Galloway said in an interview seen on C-SPAN. “My earliest memories,” he added, “are of living in houses full of frightened women looking out the window for the telegraph boy.” He was so affected by the war, he said, that he decided to become a war correspondent. He was hired by The Advocate in Victoria, Texas, when he was 17, joined U.P.I. at 19 and was bureau chief or regional manager in Tokyo, Jakarta, New Delhi, Singapore, Moscow, Los Angeles and Vietnam, where he served four stints. In addition to Dr. Liem, whom he married in 2012, he is survived by two sons, Joshua and Lee, from his first marriage, to Theresa Magdalene Null, who died in 1996. (His second marriage, to Karen Metsker, ended in divorce.) He is also survived by a stepdaughter, Li Mei Gilfillan; three grandchildren; and two step-grandchildren. He lived in Concord. Mr. Galloway acknowledged that when he arrived in Vietnam, most of what he knew about war he had learned from John Wayne movies, but he understood the need for accuracy in a combat zone. “You really don’t want to screw up a story about men who are armed and dangerous and who you will likely see again,” he said in an interview with historynet.com. He was also torn about reporting his doubts about American prospects for an honorable exit strategy. He is survived by his wife, Dr. Grace Liem. He was a war correspondent in the Vietnam War and is famous for being a part of the Ia Drang Valley battle with Lt. Gen. (Retired) Harold G. Moore. The co-authored the famous book, We Were Soldiers Once and Young about the Ia Drang – the battle that changed the war in Vietnam. Joe chronicled the first major battle of the war in “We Were Soldiers Once ... and Young” and raised questions about the invasion of Iraq. Joe Galloway, a war correspondent whose wrenching account of the first major battle of the Vietnam War was the basis for the book “We Were Soldiers Once ... and Young,” which became a best seller and the basis of a hit movie. His wife, Dr. Grace Liem, said the cause was complications of a heart attack. Mr. Galloway started in journalism at 17 and worked for 22 years as a war correspondent and bureau chief for United Press International. He was the only civilian awarded a medal of valor by the Army for combat action in the Vietnam War. He later wrote for U.S. News & World Report and for the Knight-Ridder newspaper chain. He played a vital role in the skeptical reporting by the chain’s Washington bureau about the George W. Bush administration’s claims that Iraq had stockpiled weapons of mass destruction, claims the administration used to justify the American invasion of Iraq in 2003. “He hates war, and he loves soldiers,” Lewis Lord, a former colleague at U.S. News, told the Military Writers and Editors Association when it honored Mr. Galloway in 2006 on his return to his home in Texas from his reporting base in Washington. In the foreword to “We Are Soldiers Still,” a sequel to “We Were Soldiers,” General H. Norman Schwarzkopf, who led allied forces during the 1991 Persian Gulf war, called Mr. Galloway “the finest combat correspondent of our generation — a soldier’s reporter and a soldier’s friend.” Mr. Galloway, who carried a weapon while covering the Vietnam War as a U.P.I. correspondent, was embedded with American troops during the four-day battle of Ia Drang, in the jungle of the Central Highlands, which began a day after his 24th birthday in 1965. He was awarded a Bronze Star Medal with the “V” device, denoting heroism, for rescuing wounded soldiers under fire during the engagement. Both sides claimed victory, with the United States convinced it could win a war of attrition and North Vietnam confident it could withstand whatever technological advantage the Americans wielded over Vietnamese guerrillas. The U.S. troops were commanded by Harold G. Moore, then a lieutenant colonel and later a lieutenant general, with whom Mr. Galloway would collaborate on “We Were Soldiers Once ... and Young.” The book was published in 1992 and adapted 10 years later into the Randall Wallace film “We Were Soldiers,” starring Mel Gibson, in which Barry Pepper played Mr. Galloway. Nicholas Proffitt wrote in The New York Times Book Review that “We Were Soldiers Once ... and Young” was “a car crash of a book; you are horrified by what you’re seeing, but you can’t take your eyes off it.” Mr. Galloway and Lieutenant General Moore published “We Are Soldiers Still: A Journey Back to the Battlefields of Vietnam” in 2008. Articles by Mr. Galloway reconstructing the battle, which became the basis of the first book, won a National Magazine Award for U.S. News & World Report in 1991. As a result of Mr. Galloway’s critical coverage of the run-up to the Iraq war, Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld summoned him to a meeting with high-ranking officers and accused him of relying on sources who were retired and out of the loop. As John Walcott, a colleague of his at U.S. News, Knight Ridder and McClatchy (which bought Knight Ridder), recalled, Mr. Galloway startled the group by declaring that some of his sources “might even be in this room.” He later admitted that he only said that to rattle the assembled military brass, and that “it was fun watching ‘em sweat.” Mr. Galloway was an author, along with other U.S. News staff members, of “Triumph Without Victory: The Unreported History of the Persian Gulf War” (1992). His coverage of the later Persian Gulf conflict was portrayed in Rob Reiner’s film “Shock and Awe” (2017), in which Tommy Lee Jones played Mr. Galloway.

ALBIN FELIX IRZYK (USA, BG-Ret.) – Died Monday, September 10, 2018 in West Palm Beach, Florida at the age of 101. The cause of death was old age. He was born in Salem, Massachusetts on January 2, 1917. When General George Patton raced his 3rd Army across Europe in World War II, a 27-year-old commanding a tank battalion for him was Albin F. Irzyk. The distinguished war veteran, author, educator and lecturer died Sept. 10 at age 101 at his home in West Palm Beach, where he had lived since the 1970s. "I always say there is no greater calling than putting on a military uniform and serving your country," Irzyk, who was a brigadier general, told The Palm Beach Post for a 2009 feature. "I also say there's no human endeavor that compares to commanding troops in combat." He was a Life Member of Vietnam Veterans of America – West Palm Beach Chapter #25. Albin Irzyk, 2nd LT in 1940, was the son of Catholic Polish immigrants was born in Salem, Mass., north of Boston, in 1917, at the height of U.S. involvement in World War II. He graduated from the school that later became the University of Massachusetts and where he was a three-time varsity letterman in football and baseball. In 1964, Sports Illustrated would name him a Silver Anniversary All America. In World War II, Albin Irzyk commanded a tank battalion during the Battle of the Bulge. (Family photo) Irzyk signed up for the Army on July 1, 1940, and ended up at the 3rd U.S. Cavalry Regiment. His commander was Patton. His World War II exploits include action at the Battle of the Bulge, where he commanded 14 tanks and 3,500 troops and was in a tank that was hit by German fire. He was a founding member and vice chairman of the South Florida Chapter of the Veterans of the Battle of the Bulge. "We were so cold, you could not get any colder," Irzyk told The Palm Beach Post at the local group's 2013 reunion. "We had two enemies: the Germans and the weather." Many of Irzyk's men were killed in a German counterattack. In his book "He Rode Up Front for Patton," he described "the frightening, demoralizing, intimidating, unreal sounds, screeches, and screams of high velocity tank gun rounds hitting, crashing, exploding, and ricocheting all around them. It shook, staggered, numbed, alarmed and unnerved the men.” Retired Brig. Gen. Albin Irzyk kisses his wife of 68 years after being surprised with a cake in honor of their anniversary during a Battle of the Bulge luncheon at the Embassy Suites Sunday, April 27, 2014. After the smooch, Irzyk used his remarks to applaud the efforts of the vets who he said had to battle both the Germans and weather in the Battle of the Bulge. (Damon Higgins / The Palm Beach Post) Gary Higgins, president of the national Battle of the Bulge veterans’ group, said Friday night he was at the group’s national convention in Colorado and had not heard of Irzyk’s passing but would mark it at the convention’s banquet Sunday. Higgins, a Vietnam War veteran who had three relatives in the battle, said he met Irzyk in March in West Palm Beach at a meeting of the local chapter. He said Irzyk “went above and beyond our ‘greatest generation’ members. A leader in all aspects of his military career and personal life.” Irzyk died just two months after the July 8 death of George Fisher, a Palm Beach resident and the local group’s president. Fisher was 93. In April 1945, Irzyk’s battalion had liberated the first concentration camp in Germany, and throughout his later life, he would present lectures on the Holocaust. After World War II, Irzyk commanded the 14th Armored Cavalry Regiment in Europe in the 1961 Berlin Crisis. And in the Vietnam War, he led commands in Saigon during the 1968 Tet Offensive and later in that country’s war-torn central highlands. He escaped serious injury when his helicopter conked out, forcing the pilot to crash-land from 3,000 feet. Albin Irzyk of West Palm Beach. (Bruce R. Bennett/The Palm Beach Post) Irzyk retired from active duty in 1971, with the Distinguished Service Cross, two Silver Stars, four Bronze Stars and two Purple Hearts, as well as the Distinguished Service Medal, three Legions of Merit awards, and 11 Air Medals. Later, he was headmaster of a private secondary school and sat on numerous boards. He also was a member and frequent speaker at veterans’ groups. He authored six books: four about World War II, one about the Tet Offensive and one about the 14th Armored Cavalry Regiment. In July 2012, Irzyk’s 1920s wooden home at 2527 Flagler Drive caught fire, but city firefighters doused the blaze and saved both the home and its irreplaceable mementoes. Irzyk praised the firefighters, who threw a lasagna dinner for him and his wife. “This guy is like John Wayne incarnate,” West Palm Beach Fire Capt. Butch Barndt said at the time. Irzyk is survived by his wife of 72 years, Evelyn, along with three children, a nephew, five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery this year, his son Albin Jr. said Friday from Wadsworth, Ill., near Chicago. He said he would like his father “to be remembered as a family man and a patriot who loved and faithfully served his country for his entire life.”

JOHN J. KAUSA - Died Friday, August 20, 2021 at home in Pittstown, New Jersey at the age of 79, with his family by his side after a long and hard-fought battle with Agent Orange-related esophageal cancer. He was born in Dearborn, Michigan on March 4, 1942 to the late John and Mary Kauza. John grew up with a life-long love of the outdoors, hunting and fishing in northern Michigan. He graduated first in his class at Holy Redeemer High School and, years later, was honored as a Distinguished Graduate. He credited his love of history, writing, and English to Sister Stephanie Mueller and Sister John Mary Baker, two of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Sisters (IHM's) who taught him and remained his life-long friends. Accepting a Congressional appointment from Congressman John Dingell, John entered the United States Military Academy at West Point, graduating with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Engineering, Class of 1963, and choosing Infantry as his branch of service. After successfully completing Airborne and Ranger schools, John married Mary, his "OAO" (One and Only) on December 28, 1963 in the Catholic Chapel at West Point. They spent their honeymoon driving from the east coast along the famous Route 66 to San Francisco and sailing on the "SS Lurline" to John's first assignment with the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii. John served three combat tours in Vietnam, volunteering for the first one in 1965 as a Huey aerial door gunner in the Mekong Delta region for "Operation Shotgun." Subsequent tours were in the Central Highlands (Long-Range Reconnaissance Patrols: LLRP) and the Hue region of Vietnam. After resigning from the Army, John began a successful thirty-year career at AT&T, living in Milwaukee, Cincinnati, Chicago, Cincinnati, New Jersey, Toronto, and New Jersey again, from where he retired. John quickly became known as a "Turn-Around Master" by serving in multiple roles as he would take struggling products and services and turn them into successful enterprises. His career positions included Operations Manager, Product Management, and Vice-President of AT&T Global Security (the last position he held before retiring), where he changed AT&T's culture and business practices for more robust security and was accountable for protecting over 6,000 physical locations and more than $50 billion in annual revenue. For five consecutive years under John's leadership, AT&T never experienced a security intrusion. He was recognized as "Industry Best in Class" and was a key contributor to the President's Commission to Protect Key Infrastructure, where he briefed former President Clinton on network security. John earned an MBA in International Marketing from Loyola University and was pursuing a PhD in Economics from the University of Cincinnati when he was transferred to New Jersey. John infused his values of integrity, dedication, hard work, and achievement into all of his teams, inspiring and leading them to be their best. His honesty and quick mind in recognizing solutions helped him succeed in all the positions he held. If someone had to describe John's initial impact on the AT&T teams, it was "Shock and Awe" as he was a breath of fresh air with his straight-forward talk, his tactical approach to solving problems, and his ability to ensure that his teams were equipped to succeed. But of all, John's greatest achievement at AT&T was his investment in the people he mentored. He had a unique gift of recognizing talent and helping others make the next career step with his sage advice (where often the advice was part of "Kauza's Rules"). He did this numerous times, whether with secretaries, staff, or managers. John was especially supportive of his female employees as he would say, "They worked harder because they thought they had something to prove." But the truth was that he just enjoyed the boisterous environment when around these strong, opinionated women, as most of the time he was smiling like a proud team leader. In order to get onto the Kauza Team, you had to pass his four-hour interview with over seventy questions (one could liken it to "boot camp"). But once you passed, it was a great learning experience under John's leadership. And perhaps the most durable and poignant lesson he taught was Kauza Rule #1, "Never assume the other person has the same value system you do." After retiring, John spent many hours doing what he loved, spending time with family and helping those around him. His forty-year volunteer work with the Boy Scouts began when his oldest son came home from a Boy Scout meeting and said, "Dad, the Troop needs help." With a shooting course John created, he and his instructor team taught and qualified over 6,500 Boy Scouts from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York, and London the safe and proper handling and enjoyment of firearms. The 5,000th Scout who earned the Rifle and Shotgun Shooting Merit

Badge received a Henry Repeating Rifle that John secured as a donation from the President of the Henry Company. John was very involved with the Catholic Charities Food Pantry in Phillipsburg as well as Habitat for Humanity, and he served as a board member on the Delaware Valley Regional High School Board of Education. Among his civilian awards, John received the Freedom Foundation's National Award; the Jon Cardenas Memorial Award Honoring Character and Contribution to Hunterdon Arrowhead Scouting; and the Boy Scouts of America Silver Beaver Award. For his military service, John earned the Ranger Tab, Combat Infantryman Badge, Parachute Badge, Aerial Door Gunner Wings, as well as Expert Marksman in Rifle, Pistol, Flamethrower, Recoilless Rifle, Machine Gun, and Hand Grenade. His decorations include the Valorous Unit Citation, Distinguished Unit Citation, Bronze Star Medal, Air Medal with "V" device, Air Medal with Seven Oak Leaf Clusters, Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and Three Overseas Bars, Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry with Palm, Vietnam Service Medal with three Stars, Vietnam Advisory Campaign Ribbon, National Defense Service Medal, Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, New Jersey Distinguished Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, New Jersey Vietnam Service Medal, and the Airborne Assault Medal. As written in the West Point Alma Mater, "When our work is done, our course on earth is run, may it be said, "Well done, be thou at peace." He was a Life Member of Vietnam Veterans of America – Flemington Chapter #452. John was pre-deceased by his parents, John and Mary Kauza, and an infant brother, Donald. John will be deeply missed by his loving wife, Mary; his two devoted sons, Christopher; John and wife, Gina; grandchildren, Elizabeth, Stephanie, Nicholas, Riley, and Katherine; sister, Sue Uram and husband, John; brother, Thomas and wife, Beverly; niece, Jacqueline Kauza; nephews, Sean and Kevin Bergin; and many cousins and friends. Friends and relatives gathered with the family on Wednesday, September 1, 2021, from 4:00 until 7:00 PM at the Martin Funeral Home, 1761 Route 31, Clinton, NJ 08809. A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated on Thursday, September 2, 2021 at Saint Catherine of Siena Church, 2 White Bridge Road., Pittstown, NJ 08867 at 11:00 AM. The interment was at a later date at West Point. John touched the lives of many he came in contact with. If you would like to share memories or stories, please feel free to leave them on his tribute wall or you can place them in his memory basket at the funeral home. In lieu of flowers, donations in John's memory can be made to The Immaculate Heart of Mary Sisters, 610 West Elm Avenue, Monroe, Michigan 48162; or to Saint Catherine of Siena Church, Post Office Box 245, Pittstown, New Jersey 08867.

DANIEL J. "Dan" O'LEARY - Died Sunday, September 26, 2021 at his home in Jackson, New Jersey at the age of 79. The cause of death is unknown. He was born in West Orange, New Jersey on June 8, 1942 to the late Daniel and Ruth O'Leary. He was a permanent fixture in the West Orange community and a devoted family man with a great sense of humor and a generous heart. He was a lifelong resident of West Orange until he retired in 2006, Dan was part of a long line of West Orange natives. A lineage long enough that his great-grandfather delivered milk to Thomas Edison. Graduating from West Orange High School in 1961, he began work for PSEG, before he was drafted by the United States Army to the Vietnam War in 1964, where he served his country proudly. He was a Life Member of Vietnam Veterans of America – Allenhurst Chapter #12. Once he returned, he resumed his life's work as a chief lineman for PSEG, where he worked for the next 38 years. He married the love of his life, Margaret, and they lived happily together until her untimely death in 2004. During that time, he and Margaret raised three sons, Timothy, Christopher and Michael. As Dan would say, there was never a dull moment or day in that household that wasn't an adventure. He got accustomed to dealing with the neighbors, who were usually in line when he got home from work to discuss something interesting one of the boys had done. Dan was a permanent fixture in the West Orange community with a great sense of humor; a huge and generous heart, a consummate story teller; and a major jokester. Dan made everyone feel like they were family. He was as much a guy's guy, who thrived on the banter of his PSEG buddies, as he was a sensitive and kind man. In fact, he carried bones in his pocket for the stray dogs that he would come across while working; and was known to rescue at least a few abandoned kittens during his tenure. He loved striking up a conversation with just about anyone, and he treated everyone with respect and love. In his retirement, he devoted much of his time to the New Jersey Vietnam Veteran's Memorial and Museum where he was a tour guide for children, adults and veterans alike. He loved every minute of being there and basked in the deep friendships he shared with his fellow veterans. Dan was a true New Jerseyan. He loved the beach, especially Manasquan, where he spent many childhood summers and then later on in Long Beach Island with his family. He loved the summer; he loved the Yankees; he loved collecting everything - especially Waterford crystal, impression glass and glass insulators; he loved his family and friends very deeply and was proud of his Irish roots. He was loyal, compassionate, rock steady, creative, and a problem solver, always wanting to help anyone, in whatever way he could. He worked hard and loved his life. By far, what he loved most were his grandchildren- Matthew, Lauren, Kate, Olivia and Maddie. A devoted grandpa and poppy- he never missed a softball or a soccer game. He was their biggest and most loyal fan. His face lit up when he was with them or talked about them. He spent his final day on the softball field and then watching the Yankees beat the Red Sox; a game that included a grand slam. A perfect day indeed. Dan was predeceased by his wife Margaret, his son Timothy, his parents Daniel and Ruth, his sister Beth, his brother Brendan, and his nephew Joey. He is survived by his sons, Chris and Mike, daughter in laws, Jill O'Leary and Jamie Bussel; his sister Patricia, his grandchildren, nieces and nephew and an infinite number of friends. Visitation was held on Thursday, September 30, 2021 from 4:00-8:00 PM at the Quinn-Hopping Funeral Home, Livingston, NJ.
